

Ford Motor Company Report of 2019 U.S. Political Activity

(Updated Q3 2019)

Ford believes that government relations plays a key role in supporting regulations and legislation that govern our business now and into the future, as reflected in the following excerpt from Ford's policy on U.S. political contributions:

As individual citizens, all employees are encouraged to participate in political and governmental affairs. Company efforts and programs to encourage employee participation must respect fully the rights of employees to use personal time as they choose and to decide the extent and direction of their political activities.

Members of Company management are expected to keep informed on governmental matters affecting the Company's interests and, where appropriate, to participate in the formulation and presentation of Company positions on relevant public issues. They also are expected to do their part in fulfilling the Company's responsibilities as a corporate citizen, including participation in constructive governmental activities on behalf of the Company.

The Company does not make contributions to political candidates or political organizations nor otherwise employ its resources for the purpose of helping to elect candidates to public office, even when permitted by law, nor does it take a position for partisan political purposes, that is, specifically for the purpose of advancing the interest of a political party or candidate for public office. However, with the approval of the Office of the Chief Executive, contributions may be made to support or oppose a state or local ballot proposal if such contributions are permitted by law and if the issue is of significant interest or importance to Ford.

The Company may pay administrative costs for the Ford Motor Company Civic Action Fund, for which voluntary political contributions may be solicited from management employees and shareholders. Contributions not earmarked for particular candidates or political organizations are distributed at the discretion of the Fund's Political Contributions Committee. Salaried employees may be granted leaves of absence to campaign for an elective office or serve in full-time elective or appointive office. In addition, salaried employees may be permitted to rearrange work hours and vacation plans, where feasible, to fulfill part-time governmental responsibilities. Collective bargaining agreements govern on this issue with respect to hourly employees.
